

Lisa Nichols

Co-Author, Chicken Soup for the Soul
CEO, Motivating the Teen Spirit LLC.
Producer, Ladies Can We Talk

Lisa Nichols is a dynamic international motivational speaker and powerful advocate of personal empowerment. She is the Founder and CEO of Motivating the Teen Spirit, LLC which is recognized by many as the most comprehensive empowerment skills program available today for teen self-development.

As of July 2006, her company has impacted the lives of over 60,000 teens, prevented over 1,750 suicides, reunited thousands of teens with their parents, and influenced more than 975 teen drop outs to return to school.

Lisa Nichols is a proven Entrepreneur and since starting her company in her living room in May of 2000, she has taken it international while doing more than two million dollars in business along the way.

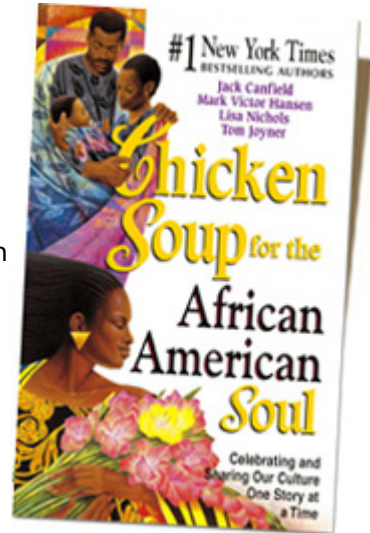

Despite being labeled "one of the worst writers" by her English teacher, she's landed three major book publishing deals with the best selling Chicken Soup for the Soul series.

She's appeared as an expert Life Coach on NBC's hit show, "Starting Over" as well as one of the 27 leading teachers featured on the international hit DVD, "The Secret."

Her highly sought after no-holds-barred messages are delivered with powerful intensity as she connects through her candid conversational style with employees of major corporations, members of empowerment groups, entrepreneurs, small business owners, educators, teens, and anyone who has the pleasure to attend one of her many standing room only presentations.

Lisa has been recognized for her work and dedication nationally and abroad. She has received the 2006 Rising Star award, 2003 Trail Blazers Entrepreneur award, Lego Land Heart of Learning award, Emotional Literacy award and November 20th is Motivating the Teen Spirit Day as proclaimed by the Mayor of Henderson Nevada.

In June 2006, Lisa was honored as the keynote speaker in Johannesburg, South Africa by the Umsobomvu Youth Fund for her commitment to youth, entrepreneurship and empowering the human spirit.
